

Gas Price Posting Pains DC Dealers

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Most independent gasoline dealers throughout the North County are up in arms today over proposals which would make it mandatory for them to post gasoline prices.

So great is the pressure from these independent dealers in Daly City that the City Council postponed action on a new ordinance until mid-January 1975.

A public hearing on the issue will be held at Daly City City Hall on Jan. 13, 1975.

Two weeks ago, the council voiced support for the price posting proposal at a public study session.

But members of the Service Station Association, made up of hundreds of independent gasoline dealers, asked for postponement of the council action pending return from Southern California of their association representative.

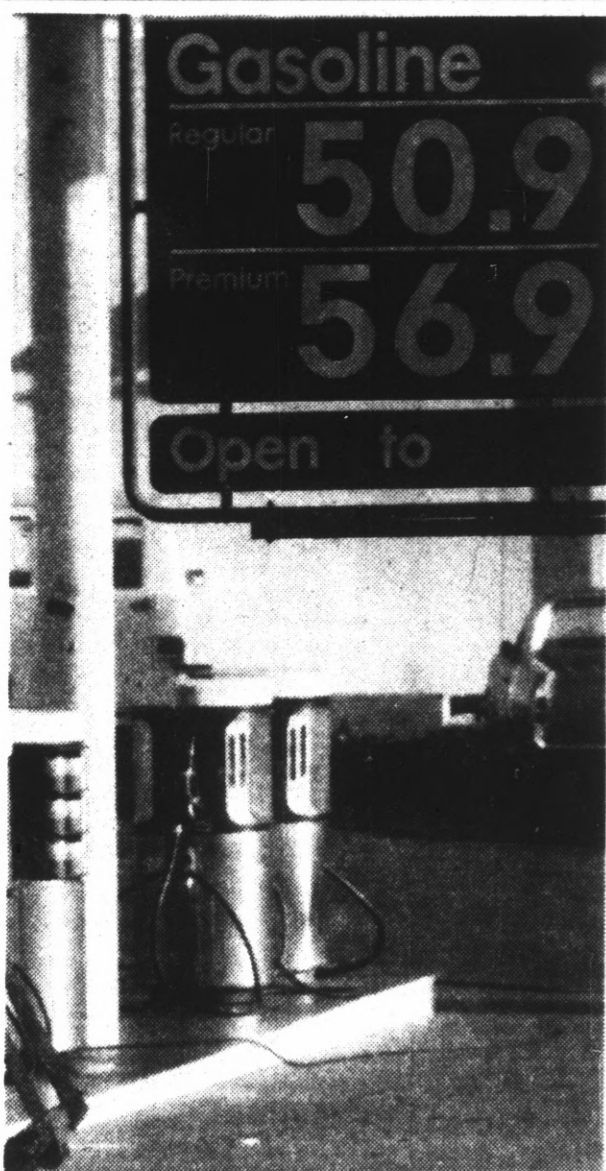

"We don't mind posting the prices outside our stations, if (the law) makes it mandatory for all businesses to do the same," Charles Lewkowitz, owner of a Chevron station on Eastmoor Avenue, Daly City, said.

"Such posting, we feel, should be at the discretion of the station dealer," Lewkowitz said.

Lewkowitz contends restaurants, hotels, and food markets should also be required to post their lowest priced items in full public view.

He said he, and surrounding dealers in his neighborhood, are already posting prices "but it's the 'mandatory' stipulation that is irritating dealers."

Another independent dealer, Willie Kellner, manager of a Junipero Serra Blvd. Shell station

PRICE POSTING

Gasoline stations in some cities, including San Francisco and Peninsula cities, are now posting gasoline prices. But independent dealers contend they are being singled out for this measure.

in Daly City, is also opposed to the ordinance. Kellner, like Lewkowitz, feels the posting "is fine if you do it to everyone."

Isn't the posting of prices a fair way to inform potential consumers of prices, dealers were asked?

"Of course it is! But why confine the posting to service stations? A customer should know, for example, what the price of a steak is before he goes into a restaurant. They should know the lowest price of a car a car dealer has on the lot. And they should know the lowest price of foodstuffs inside a market," Kellner said.

Why have they singled out service stations, dealers ask?

"I think it's a move by the company-owned stations, to take over our stations," Lewkowitz charged.

One major company has already announced it will "take over" 110 independent stations this coming year, Lewkowitz said.

Two Year Delay for BART Parking Garage

Solution to the traffic mess around the Daly City Bay Area Rapid Transit station could be at least two more years away, the City Council was told Monday.

Representatives of BART said an outline for the multi-level parking lot west of the station, plus redesign of traffic patterns in and around the station, would be presented to the transit district's Board of Directors at a Dec. 12 meeting.

If that body agrees to the new plans, engineering design of the facility will begin on Dec. 30, the representatives said.

By late next fall, contracts for construction of the site garage and streets will be awarded.

And 13 months from that time, the garage should open, they said.

All this was based on "optimistic predictions," the BART spokesmen said.

Meanwhile, construction would disrupt parking in the west lot, uprooting half the cars that now park there — some 250 vehicles.

These cars, it was feared, would clog street parking spaces throughout the BART station area.

Mayor McRobert Stewart asked the BART spokesmen if they had considered participating in a parking lot within the community and shuttling riders to and from the station?

Stewart was told the idea had been studied by BART, "but we just don't have the money" to operate such a system, a spokesman said.

The council was told BART is cooperating "at least morally" with Daly City on plans for a 200 space parking lot west of Junipero Serra Freeway that must have the approval of the San Francisco Planning Commission.

This lot is on private property within Daly City, however, access to it is through San Francisco.

For the past two years, Daly City and BART have discussed plans for the new parking garage.

Daly City already has put up some $300,000 as its share of the matching funds project.

And while the BART garage design and capacity have been changed (from 800 parking spaces to 1,100), the city was not expected to have its share increased, it was explained.

Under a recent mass transit funding act, the federal government will provide funding on a $9 to $1 scale.

Monies spent by BART to improve traffic flow in and around the station area will be used as that agency's share of matching government funds, according to BART.

The total number of spaces available when the garage is completed will be 1,900, it was learned.

Because of inflation the $3.5 million garage originally proposed now will cost about $6 million, the BART representative said.

Councilman Paul Hupf asked if BART intended to charge a fee for parking in the garage.

Hupf said Daly City and BART long ago had agreed that there would be no fee charged at the garage.

Hupf said he understood it was on this basis, the city had agreed to participate in the funding.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky was instructed to research this issue and report back to the council.

Stewart said he was meeting with mayors of five North County cities this week, seeking cooperation in solving the Daly City parking problem.

He is expected to ask them (See Page 2, Column 6)

THIS WAS A WAREHOUSE ONCE

Fire leveled the Pitcher Drilling Co. warehouse at 176A San Pedro Road, Colma, and fire officials estimate the loss could run as high as $200,000.

Fire Destroys Warehouse

A fire destroyed a machine shop in Colma early Friday morning. Colma Fire Chief George Riccomi said the loss could run as high as $200,000 and possibly higher.

He said the blaze which gutted the John Pitcher Drilling Co. facility was the worst in that North County town in several years.

According to Riccomi, the drilling company's structure, located at 176A San Pedro Road, is shared by another businessman, George Dipferati. It was in that portion of the building that the fire apparently began.

Riccomi said he believes that a spark from an auto's exhaust might have ignited some stored newspapers in the Dipferati half of the building. The burning papers then spread to a large pile of firewood. The result, the chief said, was a conflagration which could be seen "for miles around."

A passing patrol car's driver spotted the fire and radioed the alarm at 12:48 a.m.

But, by the time the fire department got to the scene, the blaze was already out of control. It took firemen about a half hour to get the fire under control. No one was hurt. A total of 34 firemen from Colma and nearby Daly City battled the flames, Riccomi said.

Besides the warehouse-machine shop, the only other property affected by the fire was a Southern Pacific railroad signal box which was burned out.

The chief said the drilling company's loss included: a pickup truck, two automobiles, a boat rigged for offshore drilling, lathes, arc welders, generators and other expensive equipment. A precise damage estimate will be available when the firm's inventory is taken.

The building was a wood frame structure which contained some corrugated metal. It was approximately 200 feet long and about 100 feet across the front. It was a single-story facility. It was located in a commercial part of that small city.

Knife-Wielding DC Man Shot by Police

A Daly City man who had barricaded himself inside his home Sunday was shot and critically wounded after he allegedly attacked police with a knife.

Officer Ike Ortiz said he was forced to shoot John Keppler in the abdomen when the man refused to heed his orders and threatened the officer with a large knife.

Keppler was taken to Mary's Help Hospital under police guard for treatment.

He was reported in stable condition today.

Keppler was charged with assault to commit murder on a police officer.

The incident began when Keppler's mother walked into the Daly City police station shortly after 10 p.m. after officers had received two telephone calls from an unidentified man.

In each call the man threatened the lives of police.

Keppler's mother said her son had thrown her out of the house at 200 Morton Drive. She asked for police protection to go back to the house and pick up her belongings.

Sgt. Tom Barner responded to the call with officers Ortiz and Ron Schenone.

Upon arrival Keppler came to the front door and threatened to kill anyone who came close, police said.

While the mother tried to talk Keppler out of the house, police broke through the front door.

Ortiz reported he confronted Keppler inside and ordered him to throw down the knives he was holding.

Trial Jail Plan OK'd For N. County Cities

A trial program whereby recently arrested prisoners of four north San Mateo County city police departments will spend pre-arrestment time and go through Release on Own Recognizance screening at the Daly City jail was approved Nov. 26 by the County Board of Supervisors.

Financing for the program will come from a $250,000 federal grant through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and is titled the Des Moines Replication Project for San Mateo County.

The type of program was successfully initiated in Des Moines, Iowa, and has been extended for further testing in San Mateo County. The county will contribute $16,488 in matching funds, an amount approved in the 1974-75 county budget.

Asst. County Manager Earl Goodwin said that the program, which is scheduled to extend through Dec. 31, 1975, is a test to determine how much time and transportation costs can be saved, and what the effect will be on the inmate population at the county jail in Redwood City.

The cities of Daly City, Pacifica, San Bruno and South San Francisco have entered into a joint powers agreement to create the program, with the federal funding being administered through the county.

The Daly City jail will be staffed with detention technicians, and there will be four additional Release on Own Recognizance (ROR) to process north county prisoners.

Basically, Goodwin said, the objectives are to utilize the Daly City jail for booking of pre-arrestment prisoners and increase the ROR services in the north end of the county.

Funds also will be utilized to provide pre-trial release services for offenders in San Mateo and to continue and expand the use of the Ellsworth House (for men) and Mustard Seed (for women) facilities in San Mateo.

Board Votes to Postpone Transit District Formation

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors is delaying action declaring formation of the San Mateo County Transit District in order that two supervisors-elect may participate in the selection of board appointees to the district's board of directors.

Technically, the board could have adopted a resolution Tuesday formally notifying the State Legislature of the affirmative vote in the Nov. 5 general election authorizing formation of the district.

The action is authorized after submission to the board and acceptance of the final official tally of votes in the election.

County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church reported that the final count on formation of the transit district was 79,840 "yes," 76,610 "no."

The legislation setting up procedures for forming and operating a transit district provides that within 30 days after the board declares the district formed, the nine members of the board of directors must be named and hold their first meeting.

The Board of Supervisors must name two of its own members and a third person with "expertise in the field of transportation" to the transit board. Three other members were named Wednesday from among city councils by the City Selection Committee. The original six then appoint three public members.

(See Page 2, Column 5)

Pacifica Mayor Named To Transit Board

The first three of nine people who will run the voter-approved San Mateo County Transit District were named Wednesday morning by the Council of Mayors.

The County's Board of Supervisors, who were to name an additional three members yesterday agreed to withhold the action until two newly elected supervisors take their place and help in the selection.

After those six are named, they must select an additional three members from San Mateo county citizens, including one from the Coastside.

That provision will result in there being two Coastside members on the board.

Elected Wednesday by the Council of Mayors were:

Aubrey Lumley, mayor of Pacifica; Robert Jones, vice mayor of Belmont and Robert Norris, council member from Redwood City.

The newly named Transit District directors were chosen to represent the cities of San Mateo county but were named by Judicial District.

Agency Approves Property Renovation

Three members of the Daly City Redevelopment Agency Monday approved the rehabilitation of property at 7316 Mission St., within the redevelopment target area.

It was the first such action taken under the DCRA's preliminary plan, adopted recently.

Councilman/Agency Director William Schumacher, an attorney, praised the project and commended the property owner for the undertaking.

The property owner is attorney and City Councilman Paul Hupf who bought the site, formerly used by King Ambulance Co., last April.

A stir was raised over Hupf's purchase of the property in the face of laws prohibiting such purchases within a redevelopment zone by members of a redevelopment agency.

But after several weeks of study, City Atty. Albert Polonsky offered the opinion that he was convinced Hupf had no knowledge of the laws and, a conflict of interest did not exist.

Polonsky then informed Hupf and Mayor McRobert Stewart not to vote on other matters concerning the redevelopment area.

Stewart's employer is Charles White who owns a lumber and hardware business in the redevelopment area.

Hupf plans to move his law offices from his present South Mayfair address to the Mission Street site when renovation is completed.

Earlier, Hupf said he expected to spend some $50,000 in repairing the structure.

Polonsky asked each of the three directors attending the meeting to make a verbal statement that Hupf had not talked to them about the property in an effort to influence his fellow councilmen.

Each, in turn, gave the verbal assurance.

Big Daly City Jewel Robbery

Daly City police are investigating the holdup of the Westlake Jewelers store Saturday in which two armed men fled after grabbing some $25,000 to $30,000 in merchandise.

Police said the pair held up the store about 9:30 a.m.

Daly City Community Projects

Input from Residents Urged

Daly City residents are today being urged to recommend projects to improve the community.

A meeting on the matter will be held at the City Hall Council Chambers at 7 p.m., Dec. 16, City Manager David Rowe said.

All ideas regarding priorities on the recommendations will be considered in applying for federal Community Development Funds, Rowe said.

Daly City is now eligible for some $211,000 this year and $1,458,000 over the next three years to implement these development projects, it was explained.

The programs must give maximum priority to low or moderate income areas, or aid in preventing blight and slums, Rowe said.

Activities eligible for funding include:

Land acquisition or construction of neighborhood facilities; senior citizens; housing rehabilitation; code enforcement; conservation of open space and scenic areas; parks; playgrounds; pedestrian facilities; flood and drainage facilities; and public facilities.

Community services include employment, economic development, child care and crime prevention. "Community groups and interested individuals should make their concerns and priorities known at the December hearing," Rowe urged.

Another hearing will be held on Jan. 13, where the public can review the city's recommended objectives and projects.

The funds are available under the Community Development and Housing Act of 1974.

This bill consolidates a number of federal community development programs and gives local cities more control over the planning and use of Department of Housing and Urban Development funds.

Daly City will be preparing its application for the funds in December and January.

The application will include background data on the problems of low income persons and older sections of the city.

It will establish annual and three year service objectives, priorities and programs.

The city must prepare a Housing Assistance Plan as part of the application.

"None of the $211,000 can be used for new housing for low and moderate income persons," Rowe said. "However, rehabilitation can be financed under this application."

Federal funds for new low income housing will be available under a different segment of the 1974 act.

Questions about the public hearings or the community development grant planning should be directed to Dennis Porter or Larry Hannel at the Civic Center, 992-4500, Ext. 277.

City Asks for Members Of Advisory Committee

The Daly City City Council is calling on organized groups and individual residents to submit names of persons desiring to serve on the new 30-member Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Goals and the General Plan.

This committee will have the primary role in development of long-range community planning programs.

It will hold hearings on community needs and goals;

general plan of the city; city's capital outlay plan; and the Community Development Revenue Sharing programs, Assistant City Manager Ray Letsinger said Monday.

Formation of the committee is a major element of the three-year planning program which was initiated by the formation, in July 1974, of the city's Community Development Department.

The community goals and general plan activities of this new department are funded in part through a three year "701" planning grant from the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The City Council has called for a broadly representative Citizens' Committee which will include representatives of homeowners associations, school agencies, merchant groups, social and health services, minority and ethnic groups and city boards and commissions.

In the "701" grant application, it was specified that the Committee have the same general racial and ethnic composition as the city as a whole.

Using this formula, the resulting committee will be composed of three Orientals, three blacks, nine Spanish surname, 34 "other caucasian", and "other minority."

The last such general plan committee was formed some seven years ago — in 1968 — when the present city plan was developed and subsequently adopted by the council.

This will be the first major updating of the plan since that time, Letsinger said.

Interested groups and persons may send names of prospective committee members to: City Council or City Manager, City Hall, 90th and Sullivan Avenues, Daly City 94015, prior to Jan. 3, 1975.

APPOINTMENT

Daly City Assemblyman Louis J. Papan was named Speaker Pro Tem of the State Assembly during the legislature's regular session Monday. Papan received a unanimous vote of support for the powerful post on a motion made by Howard Berman, Democratic majority leader of the Assembly. The former city councilman, now in his second term as an assemblyman, vowed to "work together with the leadership of the state."

SFLA Reports 30% Overload

Despite significant reductions of scheduled airlines operations, passenger volume at San Francisco International Airport continued to increase during October, Airports Director William J. Dwyer announced today.

Airlines arrivals and departures during October were down 10.2% from the same month last year, but the 1,428,257 air passengers using the air terminal represented an increase of .5% establishing a record high passenger volume for any October in airport history.

The volume of U.S. Mail by air was off 4.3% to 15,308,062 pounds, while air express declined 10.7% to 1,627,437 pounds and air freight dropped 13.5% to 61,247,052 pounds.

"The decline in mail loads is the result of the U.S. Postal Service rerouting mail destined for Southern California," Dwyer pointed out, "while the decline in express and freight relates to the reduction in airline operations."

"High terminal passenger volume averaging over 46,000 travelers per day constitute an almost 30% overload of terminal facilities and emphasize the need for the new North Terminal and garage addition," Dwyer observed.

Gift-Giving Review Set at DC Library

Holiday spirit will prevail at the review of books for gift-giving for The Friends of the Daly City Library and their guests by Mrs. Frank W. Hosmer Jr. of San Francisco, president of The Forum Club and literary section chairman of the California Club, tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the John Daly Library, 6351 Mission St., Daly City.

Mrs. Hosmer is well-known to The Friends and is an experienced group leader and book reviewer. Under her maiden name, Audrey McCullough, she is a publisher author of short stories.

Goodies appropriate to the season will be served at the coffee hour preceding the review by the hospitality chairwoman, Mrs. Klaus Tschornig, and her assistants.

Mrs. H. C. Kincaid, book review chairwoman, will accept at the review reservations for a no-host luncheon honoring Mrs. Hosmer to be held at The Ranch Inn, Serramonte Shopping Center.

Poisoned Gravy at San Bruno Jail

Five jailers at the San Francisco County Jail near San Bruno escaped serious injury after eating Thanksgiving Day dinner accidentally laced with an industrial cleaner.

According to authorities, chef Jose Vasquez mistakenly used tri-sodium-phosphate instead of salt in spicing the gravy. Officials said both are kept in similar tins in the kitchen.

Sergeants Gerald Mahan and Vern Smith and deputies Richard Jackson, Paul Vanelli and Larry Ghiotto, as well as Vasquez, were rushed to San Francisco General Hospital and given stomach tranquilizers.

Officials said the men all returned to work, complaining of burning sensation in the mouths and stomachs.

According to officials, the men were halfway through the feast of candied yams, cranberries and rolled turkey when an inmate burst in with the news of the mixup.

Tri-sodium-phosphate is normally used at a 1-to-one ratio with water as an industrial cleaner. It is white and looks like salt. No malice was intended, according to officials.

After hearing of the incident, authorities said inmates turned down gallons of turkey gravy at the evening meal, even though the batch prepared for them was non-toxic.

Planners OK Coast Carnival

The Pacifica Planning Commission approved, 5-2, a request for a carnival, to be sponsored by the Oceana High School Senior Class, on the faculty parking lot, Feb. 28, and March 1 and 2, and for similar dates in 1976 and 1977.

Commissioner Ellie Maguire urged that it be closed 10 p.m. rather than 11 p.m. on school nights.

A series of hearings over single family homes were held, at which almost no one testified except the applicants.

Carl W. Peck asked for — but did not get — a variance to permit construction of a home on a 4,000 square foot lot, when 5,000 feet are required, at 905 Paseo Terrace.

Planners denied Peck permission to build a house on his lot, but a 5-1 vote, because the General Plan shows high density use (apartments) in that area.

Patricia K. McCarthy won a variance to build a detached carport in her rear yard to within five feet of the rear property line and a deck in the rear yard connecting the home to an accessory building within five feet of the rear property line. The commissioners approved the variance, 4-1, because of special circumstances.

Walter Crim, contractor acting on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. William Balen, sought a use permit to construct a two-room addition and to an existing, non-conforming home.

Located at 470 Pacifica Ave. the home has a five-foot front yard garage setback and a 10-foot front yard residence setback.

The planning staff reported a permit to build was given by mistake in 1962, without a Planning Commission hearing. Crim said he believed the city had granted the permit for the original home legitimately.

The commission, however, now is requiring a licensed survey of the property lines.

Crim said, "This man cannot afford a licensed surveyor. I'll rip the building down first. It can cost $400,500. He's a retired man."

Robert J. O'Donnell won reduction of the size of a garage car stalls at 864 Arguello Blvd. to permit construction of a master bathroom. O'Donnell said he still can park two cars in the garage.

City Planner Jim Miller had denied his request administratively on grounds that it would encourage residents to park on their driveways and streets. O'Donnell was appealing the denial.

A neighbor, O'Donnell noted, filled his garage with storage but parks four cars in the street.

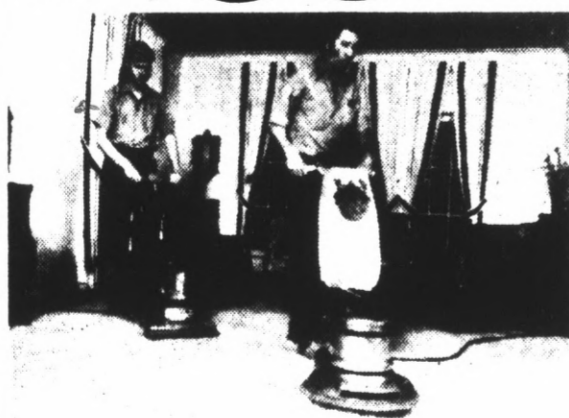

"Here, I'm trying to get legal permission to add another bathroom," he added. "Who's the better citizen?"

George LeBus' request to create another lot at the end of Loma Vista Terrace and reduce the size of two lots on Talbot Avenue was denied. He said he wanted to build a large home on a resulting half-acre lot. The commissioners said under the zoning and the objectives of the Hillside Protection Ordinance, approximately an acre was needed for such a steep lot.

A request by Marguerite Washington for a 90-day continuance on an application for site development of a plant and gift shop on her property at 630 Palmette Ave was approved.

Students' Impact on Council Decisions

It was a mock City Council session held in Pacifica Nov. 26, as part of the annual Youth in Government Day, sponsored by Pacific Rotary Club, but its decisions held the real possibility of affecting city policy.

First, there was the matter of $10,000 given to the youth of Pacifica four years ago by Standard Oil, in recognition of the work done by youth in cleaning up an oil spill threatening the beaches.

This amount, through the magic of compound interest, has become $14,000. The City Council asked its Youth Advisory Commission — composed of Pacifica High School students — to decide how to spend the money. The YAC, in turn, passed the issue to the mock City Council.

There were actually two mock City Councils, plus two groups of other students acting the roles of the city's top administrative officers. They were hosted by their city counterparts. The Recreation Commissioners were shown the city's play facilities, while City Manager Don Weidner chose simply to chat about government with the student city managers.

The students met in a series of caucuses, in the morning, when city officials were present to explain various city issues, and to answer all questions. At lunch, the students were hosted by the Rotarians. They heard a talk by Jean Fassler, chairwoman of the Board of Supervisors, and the city's first mayor.

The first mock City Council, headed by Mayor Dennis DeFord, voted to reject a proposal to spend the money for bike trails and instead adopted a resolution recommending that a "Youth Advisory Subcommittee" be formed to study the feasibility of holding youth-sponsored dances at a profit.

The reasoning behind the proposal, as explained by several students, was that by holding the dances, they could spend the money and get some back to spend for anything they wished.

Carl Drye of Terra Nova, however, complained that if the dances proved an unsuccessful enterprise, then the youths would have nothing to show for the money. He urged the money be spent for bike paths.

"We at Oceana," another boy replied, "don't like to ride bikes, man. We drive cars. Maybe they ride bikes at Terra Nova, but we can both get together at dances."

The council voted against spending the money on bicycle paths, and against splitting the money between the two schools, to be divided between bicycle paths and dances.

The second council voted for a series of changes in the General Plan. These included:

- Revising the projected population (now 38,000), from 90,000 down to 50,000, by 1990.

- An area be provided for a new city hall complex.

- Highway 380 be deleted from the plan.

- Sharp Park Road be improved.

A proposal by Carl Riewerts, head of the YAC, to encourage non-polluting industry to move to Pacifica in order to broaden the tax base, was soundly defeated, on the grounds that "people moved to Pacifica to get away from all this."

7-11 Store Robbed in Pacifica

Two men held up the 7-Eleven Store at 100 Clarendon Road, Pacifica, last week and escaped with $293.

According to Pacifica police, the men forced manager Milton Stern, clerk Joseph W. Hunter and three customers down on the floor. The robbers wore ski masks and one held a German Luger, police said.

A customer told police she saw a woman on the floor when she entered the store, but thought the woman had fainted. Then, she heard the command, "Get on the floor, lady, lie on the floor!"

The robbers took money from wallets and the cash register.

Marina EIR Under Study

The South San Francisco Planning Commission will consider certification of the Environmental Impact Report for the proposed expansion of Oyster Point Marina after the first of the year.

Last Tuesday night, the commission voted to adopt various comments as a response to the draft Environmental Impact Statement and to send them to the Director of Parks and Recreation for the preparation of the final report.

The approved response included comments from such agencies as the State Department of Health, Solid Waste Management, Air Resources Board, Bay Conservation and Development Commission and the State Water Resources Control Board.

Also part of the response were comments from the city planning staff.

City Planner David Hale, in the staff report, said "The EIR should answer questions of feasibility regarding the future development of restaurants on unstable soils at this site.

Hale also pointed out that the Marina is located within the proposed Shoreline Regional Park and that plans should indicate how pedestrian access will tie in with it.

The Oyster Point project would expand yachting facilities at the marina and provide a wide range of waterfront oriented recreational activities such as fishing, strolling, picnicking and bicycling.

Pacifica Seeks Pool Designer

An eight-person steering committee is searching for an architect to design the new enclosed city-school swimming pool at Oceana High School.

The committee was appointed at a joint session of the Pacifica City Council and Jefferson Union High School Board. They met at the Pacifica Sewage Treatment Plant Nov. 26.

Mayor Aubrey Lumley named Councilman Sid Lorvan, City Manager Don Weidner, Director of Parks, Beaches and Recreation Virginia Jaquith, and PB&R Commission Chairman Virginia Henkle to the committee. The Jefferson District Board appointed its chairman, John Sloan, as well as Oceana Principal Joseph Conway to the committee. Athletic Director Jesse Jones and Asst. Supt. Floyd Gonella are also serving.

The job of planning the tennis courts, included in Pacifica's recently approved $550,000 bond issue, was assigned to an informal committee composed of city and school district staff. The architect for the courts is Jim Coke who is currently designing additions to Terra Nova High School.

A hitch threatened to upset the harmony of the two boards when Gonella presented cost estimates for four lighted tennis courts.

"We sold the bond issue to the voters on the basis of eight tennis courts," Lumley insisted. The school trustees finally agreed on the eight courts, although some of the school staff expressed reservations as to whether enough room was available.

The mayor also insisted that "in our meeting in June, we talked about eight tennis courts."

Estimates for the cost of building both the tennis courts and the swimming pool have gone up sharply since mid-summer estimates, but there still appeared to be enough money available. Actually, the estimate called for the city to contribute $40 more than it had available from the $550,000 bond issue, but Lumley assured the trustees that the city could find $40.

Total estimates for the project came to $1,376,000 — with the pool alone coming to $1,200,000. The estimates included a 20 to 25 per cent per year inflation factor through mid-1975.

School Tax Measure: Another Try

Voters of the South San Francisco Unified School District will be balloting again March 4, on a tax-increase measure to permit the district to spend up to $95 a year more per pupil.

The measure would allow the school board to restore the 51-cent tax-cut it had to institute for this year. Voters, in the Nov. 5 election, defeated the measure 7,080 to 5,019.

Presenting the issue to the voters again was recommended by Burch Bachold, chairman of the Election Steering Committee, which led the unsuccessful campaign.

Meanwhile, at a special meeting Wednesday, the trustees approved the membership of the Community Finance Study Committee, headed by John Penna. This committee had been headed by Valerie Lambertson last year, and was dissolved after it had recommended the tax election.

Mrs. Lambertson, who took her seat on the board Wednesday, had asked the committee members to get together again to seek economies in operation of the school district.

According to Supt. Paul Nielsen, it is expected that the economies will be agreed upon by February. Should tax increase be approved, it would then be up to the trustees to decide whether to restore any of the budget cuts.

Dr. Nielsen explained that the tax-cut was imposed upon the district at the beginning of the fiscal year under provisions of SB-90. He cited increased costs as the reason for seeking an increased budget.

"Everything has gone up," he declared, "gasoline, paint, materials and salaries."

Yet, he added, the district was only able to grant a four per cent salary increase to teachers during the past year.

Fracus With Police Ends In Arrests

Eight persons, including six juveniles, were arrested Wednesday night following a scuffle with Pacifica police.

Booked were Richard Deschler, 18, 1376 Solano Drive, Pacifica, who was charged with possession of marijuana and interfering with an officer, and Steven Shirley, 18, of 796 Noriega, Pacifica, who was charged with assault and battery on a police officer and resisting arrest. Names of the juveniles were not released.

Pacifica police report officers Glenn Strable and Robert Robinson drove to Alcala Court to investigate a report that about 100 youths were creating a disturbance in the street.

Upon arrival, the officers attempted to break up the group, but were allegedly attacked by several of the youths. Unable to control the disturbance, officer Strable called for assistance from neighboring police departments.

Units from Redwood City, Burlingame, Foster City, Hillsborough, Half Moon Bay, Broadmoor, San Bruno, Millbrae, South San Francisco, Brisbane and San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies responded to the scene and after a short time broke up the gathering.

Police report no one was injured.

Attendants remove body of a motorcyclist killed in an accident in South San Francisco.

Motorcyclist Dies in S.S.F. Collision; Wife Injured

A South San Francisco motorcyclist is dead and his wife is reported in stable condition at S.F. General Hospital following a collision on Grand Avenue early Thursday morning.

Dead is Anthony Tostado, 22, a sheet metal worker, of 344 Armour Ave. Hospital aides report his wife, Ramona, in stable condition suffering from multiple injuries and burns.

According to South San Francisco Police, two officers copied a radio broadcast from Millbrae police about 2 a.m. today that they were in pursuit of a motorcyclist speeding north on Highway 101 in excess of 100 miles per hour.

Millbrae police said a woman was riding tandem on the motorcycle and that the cycle had no lights.

Police said the Millbrae officers lost sight of the cycle as it sped off the freeway at Grand Avenue.

The two South San Francisco officers, Russell Moss and Robert Collins, driving east on the 500 block of Grand Avenue, saw the motorcycle pass them traveling west at about 90 miles per hour they said.

The officers turned around to follow the bike, but were unable to overtake it. They continued west and as they approached the corner of Oak Street and Grand they noticed flames shooting 30 feet in the air.

Police said the motorcycle had smashed into the rear of a parked van and both vehicles had burst into flames.

The passenger on the motorcycle, Ramona Tostado, was found on fire in a puddle of gasoline. Her husband, Anthony, was found by officers crumpled under the van.

Police said a third officer who had responded to the scene, Tony Wynne, ran into the flames and dragged Mrs. Tostado to safety. All three officers extinguished her burning clothing.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT TO SAN MATEO COUNTY TRANSIT DISTRICT BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Applications are currently being accepted from qualified individuals for consideration as the Board of Supervisors' appointee to the San Mateo County Transit District Board of Directors.

The Board of Supervisors has the responsibility to appoint a member "who shall possess expertise in the field of transportation."

Application forms may be obtained by calling the office of the Board of Supervisors, 364.5600, Ext. 2207. Deadline for the receipt of applications in the Board of Supervisors' office, Hall of Justice and Records, Redwood City, is 5 P.M., December 27, 1974. Appointment will be made after January 6, 1975.

Coast Panel Sets Meets

A draft of the eighth, and next-to-last, of nine elements of the proposed Coastal Plan will be the subject of public informational meetings in December in the Central Coast Regional Coastal Zone Commission area.

This is the "Intensity of Development" element, like the seven before it, an extensive technical report and recommendations from the central coast CZCC staff as it pertains to the central coast zone of San Mateo, Santa Cruz and Monterey counties.

The San Mateo County meeting will be at 8 p.m.

Dec. 12 in the Pacifica City Council chamber in the Sharp Park Municipal Facility.

Other counties' meetings will be at 8 p.m. Dec. 9 in the Santa Cruz County Board of Supervisors chamber in the Santa Cruz County Government Center and at 8 p.m. Dec. 10 in the Monterey Peninsula College administration building board room in Monterey.

The first full-scale public hearing will be at 8 p.m. Dec. 16 in the Santa Cruz Board of Supervisors chamber and second hearing and possible adoption at 8 p.m. Jan. 6 at the same place.

The regional commission is on a tight schedule, with a Jan. 9 deadline for final adoption. The last element will be on powers, funding and government. Once adopted the nine elements will be passed on to the state Coastal Zone Conservation Commission, which must have the statewide Coastal Plan adopted by 1976, as required by Proposition 20 on the 1972 ballot which created the commission.

Basic goals of the intensity of development element are: Protection and enhancement of natural and man-made resources, including ecological, historical and esthetic assets; priority of coastal usage for those users dependent on the coast; access to the coast for people of all income levels; orderly utilization within coastal transportation and recreational capacities; and restoration of lost or degraded coastal resources.

Staff recommendations include: Creation of a continuous band of shoreline public ownership and management; priority for private and public recreational and transient facilities over residential uses; encouragement of industries, such as agriculture, which are most productive and dependent on the coast; and public shoreline access through all developments.

Liquor Store Owner Robbed, Hit on Head

A San Bruno liquor store owner was hit on the head after being robbed at gunpoint Nov. 25.

Alfred Bossa was alone in his Pacific Heights Plaza store at 7:50 p.m., when a blond-bearded man entered and took a bottle of champagne to the counter.

The suspect produced a four-inch blue-steel weapon when Bossa opened the cash register drawer.

The suspect stuffed the money into a paper bag, along with the champagne, then ordered Bossa down on the floor and demanded more money.

Bossa gave up the contents of his wallet.

Bossa was ordered to turn his back to the suspect. He then was felled by a blow to the head, apparently from the handgun.

The store owner later was treated at Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco for his head injury.

Five minutes earlier, a 17-year-old attendant at the Fotomat booth at 90 Skyline Blvd. reported she had been robbed at gunpoint by a masked black man.

The girl told San Bruno police the man held a gun to her head and demanded the money in the cash register drawer. Authorities said the suspect did not get much, because most of the day's receipts had been placed in a night depository shortly before the robbery.

The Christmas Bureau of San Mateo County will direct its program for South San Francisco and San Bruno from its distribution center at 805 Linden Ave., South San Francisco.

The Center will be open Monday through Friday to receive donations from the public of toys, canned-packaged goods and clothes. The center is staffed by volunteers under the direction of Pat Rivas and Larry Smith.

Last year Christmas Bureau of South San Francisco-San Bruno served 200 households with a Christmas dinner and 950 children received toys. Cash donations should be sent to Christmas Bureau, 119 Primrose Road, Burlingame, 94010. Donations of toys, canned-packaged food and clothes can be made to the local center at 805 Linden Ave., South San Francisco.

To date, the following locations will be in operation Dec. 2 to receive donations:

Christmas House, 1671 Bay Rd., East Palo Alto.
Christmas Bureau, 151 No. B St., San Mateo.

NELL

Good morning, good cooks. Here we are in the first week in December, and I can share with you a recipe that I tested and tasted in July and set aside to offer as a special treat for your Christmas giving.

There are so many attractive and novel containers on the market these days, a jar of this tasty granola and the recipe for making it, is a gift that has eye and taste appeal.

TASTY NUT GRANOLA

3 cups old-fashioned rolled oats, uncooked 1/4 cup light brown sugar
 one-third cup wheat germ
 1/4 cup coconut, flaked or shredded
 3 Tablespoons sesame seeds
 1/2 cup slivered almonds, unbleached
 1/4 cup salad oil
 3 Tablespoons honey
 1 scant teaspoon vanilla
 A light sprinkling of salt
 1/2 cup seeded, soft raisins
 Heat oven to 300-degrees, use oblong cake pan 9 x 11 x 2-inches or cookie sheet.

Measure the three cups rolled oats in ungreased pan and heat uncovered for 10 minutes, stirring once or twice. While the oats are heating, measure the fourth cup brown sugar, one-third cup wheat germ, fourth cup coconut, three tablespoons sesame seeds and half cup almonds in bowl. Mix well. When the 10 minutes cooking time is up, remove oats from oven and stir the mixed dry ingredients into the oats.

In small bowl combine the fourth cup oil, three tablespoons honey and one teaspoon vanilla and drizzle over dry ingredients in baking pan. Stir with a fork to mix.

Return to oven and bake, uncovered, for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Stirring often.

The baking process takes close watching so the mixture doesn't scorch. This can happen easily with the brown sugar and honey baking in an ungreased pan. So just keep an eye on it and stir it often.

When the granola is golden brown remove to a rack to cool. Sprinkle very lightly with salt and allow to cool completely, stirring several times. Add the raisins and immediately store in closed container in refrigerator. Always close tightly, so it will retain crispness. Makes 5 to 6 cups.

The type of raisin called for is a puffed seeded muscat raisin. They are large and moist.

NOTE: In the last week's recipe for dark fruit cake, the amount of flour was misprinted in the list of ingredients. It is 2 1/2 cups. The amount was repeated in the mixing instructions correctly.

Alcatraz

Alcatraz, 12 acres of solid rock, an island adrift in the azure bay, "waits for its final definition in the San Francisco panorama." Meanwhile it is the subject of a collection of photographs, drawings and paintings by Robert Gerneron and his associates.

Here is a book that has been carefully edited and designed to create a beautiful display of pictures and captions. Jane Olaf Kristiansen is the editor while the captions and text are by Robert E. Burger.

Alcatraz contains 22 acres and is separated from the mainland by more than a mile of water. Burger calls it "an island of no return." The tarnished jewel which nature placed in the San Francisco Bay has been coveted and feared, admired and discarded by successive generations since the day some 200 years ago when the Spanish explorer, Ayala, gave it the name, "Isla de Alcatraz," island of the pelicans.

Although Alcatraz was discovered in 1545 and named by the Spanish in 1775, it was not explored until 1846 when Julian Workman asked the Mexican Governor of California to build a lighthouse there. He wrote that Alcatraz is "a small island called 'bird island,' which as never been inhabited nor used for any purpose." In response the Governor gave the island to Workman, who in turn sold it to the United States government for $5,000.

Although the government acquired the island for military purposes, it erected a lighthouse in 1854 and then fortified the entire acreage at a cost of $2 million. In their characteristic manner, the Army Engineers reported that here was "a mass of rock with a very thin crust of soil and of bird manure on the surface."

Alcatraz was first a prison in 1868 where military offenders and Indian leaders were sent. After the Spanish-American War, it became a convalescent center for soldiers arriving from the Philippines. After the 1906 earthquake it housed prisoners from the San Francisco jails. The Department of Justice took over Alcatraz in 1934. From thence to 1963 it housed such men as, Al Capone, Alvin Karpis, Machine-Gun Kelly and Basil (the Owl) Banghart.

The roster in 1962 showed that 175 of the prisoners were Anglo, 75 were black, three were Indian, two were Japanese or Chinese, 10 were Mexican, and one was Puerto Rican. Besides the prisoners, the Rock had 156 employees, most of them guards.

A photograph shows that a typical menu included two grilled frankfurters, one hot chili, parsley potatoes, pot fried sauerkraut, mustard, banana pudding, two frankfurter rolls, bread and tea. Although it was not always true, at times prisoners were forced to clean up their plates or forfeit the next meal.

Such information along with the photographs and the paintings make "Alcatraz" a book that "Bay Area" residents will want to read. It can be purchased in the book stores of the area or found in public libraries.

Eleanor McGovern's 'Uphill' Trek

By MICHELLE CARTER

Campaign signs reading "Let's put another Eleanor in the White House" marked the 1972 presidential campaign for still another distinction — for virtually the first time the candidate's wife was running for First Lady while her husband ran for the Presidency.

As it turned out both the candidate and his wife lost miserably that year but Eleanor McGovern, perhaps the only one to come out of that misbegotten election untarnished, now has faced that defeat as well as other victories in a new book, "Uphill", (Houghton Mifflin).

In her 30-some years as a political wife, Eleanor McGovern has played all the roles from "unseen, unheard" in the early Congressional years to the '72 campaign when she moved around the country independent of her husband waging her own mini-campaign that often brought out more of the real issues than the candidate himself encountered.

In the book, co-authored by Mary Finch Hoyt who served as her press secretary during the presidential campaign, Mrs. McGovern confronts the sticky issues as well as the exhilarating ones. She is able to give her personal insight to the painful early days of the campaign when Sen. Thomas Eagleton's past history of mental illness became known and McGovern faced the torturous decision of replacing him on the national ticket.

She explained the immediate reaction to Eagleton's disclosure:

"The money for the campaign dried up overnight, and the staff was blighted by the press for sloppy work in choosing Tom for consideration in the first place."

"It seemed to me that whether or not our staff asked Tom the right questions about his past, whether or not he was thoroughly 'investigated' is irrelevant. A senator does not conduct an FBI check on a colleague. It would be an insult. Every politician knows what his credits and debits are, and there is a tacit understanding that the facts go on the table."

"It was a no-win situation."

Hour by hour unrelated events welded together to create a monstrous impasse. The joy was gone for us and nothing would ever seem the same again.

She also relives those agonizing days when her third daughter, Teresa was arrested in South Dakota for possession of marijuana.

"I know this has happened in many families in recent years, but perhaps our experience was more bizarre than most because it took place only days before George made the startling announcement, after the death of Robert Kennedy, that he was going to run as a peace candidate for President of the United States."

"But during this period

an essential part of me dwelt on the reasons Teresa had felt she needed drugs to cope with the stresses of her adolescence. As it was, I tried to talk to her, sensibly not using drugs. My fears were all-consuming.

"I said, half serious, half bluffing, 'I'll do anything to keep drugs away from you. I'll not sit by and say, 'Yes, my darling daughter'."

True to her nature, Eleanor McGovern's experience with drugs in her own family launched a personal campaign to learn all she could about teen-age use of drugs. Since her "education" she has reevaluated her actions in those critical days and reached the conclusions that she would act differently if she encountered the same situation again today.

"I think I would try to be more trusting; after all, young people want to survive. And I would listen more carefully. Most assuredly I would try to avoid focusing on the child involved to the extent of ignoring other family needs; all my family tell me now that I was too 'Terry-oriented.'"

Eleanor McGovern, although very much a liberated woman intellectually and spiritually, remains a mother in her instinctive reactions. A part of every campaign stop in 1972 was reactions. A part of every campaign stop in 1972 was devoted to touring child care facilities where she hoped to find children too busy having fun to cling to her begging for her to take them home. Unfortunately, she says, she encountered too few of the busy, happy, successful kind, and these discoveries led her to describe herself and her possible White House role as that of a child advocate.

The fact that she will not do her advocating from the White House has not lessened her will to better the lot of the nation's children. Almost all of her public activities today are focused in this direction.

"Uphill" tells as much about Eleanor Stegerson before she met George McGovern in a debating match in a small South Dakota town, as after. She talks willingly about how the events of her early life—her twinship, the loss of her mother at age 11 and the hard Depression years on a farm, and how they helped to shape her adult personality.

Her mother's death profoundly affected young Eleanor, mostly because she refused to accept it and to grieve.

"I know now how serious it was for me to refuse to acknowledge my mother's death. For many weeks I rejected reality. I was a child in crisis without the slightest idea of how to cope."

"The end of life and love is more than children can handle alone. And I can attest that if a youngster is not helped to accept death, is not supported through the ultimate crisis, it can cause far-reaching, lifelong problems."

Because of closeness of her own extended family in South Dakota, Eleanor McGovern hopes to keep her own family around her as much as possible. She envisions a vacation home, perhaps in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where a family compound would hold separate homes for each of the children and their families with the McGovern's home in the center. There they could all maintain their privacy, and still share each other's experiences.

Mrs. McGovern remembers her grandmothers and the part they played in her childhood. That's the relationship she would like to have with her own three grandchildren — and the others to come.

On Dec. 15 at 11 a.m., the Choral Society will present a Christmas program at the United Methodist Church in Burlingame. Soloists as well as duets and trios will be featured in the program as well as a string ensemble. Karen O'Bannon of San Carlos will be the accompanist.

pers with the caption, "We wish all our friends a Happy and Healthy Christmas — we have donated our Christmas Card money to the American Cancer Society."

Recent events involving Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Rockefeller has brought public attention to the important work which has been done by the American Cancer Society.

"What better way to remember someone lost to cancer than by helping the Cancer Society in their fight against this dread disease," added Stoba.

Plans are being formulated to interest groups and individuals in running advertisements in local newspapers.

"Instead of sending Christmas Cards this year, why not donate the money to help fight cancer?"

This suggestion was made by Sam Stoba, Crusade Development Chairman for the San Mateo County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

"Because of the high cost of sending cards, many people feel that they would rather see their money go for a better cause," noted Stoba.

Plans are being formulated to interest groups and individuals in running advertisements in local newspapers.

Supervisors-elect View New Jobs

Both John M. Ward and Edward J. Bacciocco Jr., who will become members of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors Jan. 7, favor a stronger role from the board in assuming leadership in county government.

Each expressed his philosophy in separate appearances before recent meetings of the County Administrators Association.

"Leadership of county government should not come from the county manager and staff, but from the supervisors," Ward stated.

"We need to ask how that leadership role can be assumed — how can the board regain its proper role of policymaker, of legislator, rather than the sometimes comfortable role of responder to recommendations of the manager, department heads and staff."

In his appearance, Bacciocco commented that he is a "staunch defender of government bodies operating as close to the public as possible."

ble and progressively suspicious of its elected, and especially its unaccountable appointed, officials the further they are removed from the people they are supposed to serve.

"Ideally, the Board of Supervisors, which stands in the public's stead... should set policy alone, or with the aid of recommendations from the county manager, department leaders and from other sources outside the Government Center in Redwood City."

Both supervisors-elect also said they will strive for more effectiveness and efficiency from county departments in serving the public.

"How can we make public servants out of civil servants?" Ward asked. "How can we make county department function more efficiently and effectively in serving the taxpayers? The spirit of public service must come from the leadership of the department heads."

John Ward

Ward asked what mechanisms department heads have established for "positive and constructive suggestions as to how your staff might function better — how bureaucracy might be reduced and how new programs might be developed."

For his part, Bacciocco stated that San Mateo County "is fortunate to employ some of the best administrators in California."

He said he is looking forward to each department defining for the public's edification "your reason for being, plus your projected goals and the means of achieving them."

Ward commented on "the huge size" of the board's meeting agendas and the huge task of absorbing background material in time to make good decisions.

More time is needed for airing of some issues, he contended. Ward said the board should hold more regular study sessions and possibly begin its meetings at 9 a.m. (current starting time is 10 a.m.).

Bacciocco said that after he learns his new job, "it will be my responsibility to make an accounting to the public about the purposes and efficacy of San Mateo's county government."

"If I fail personally, or as a member of the board, 'the responsibility for that failure will not be yours, but must rest on those of us who failed to make policy and set public standards for you to aspire and meet.'"

Judge Dismisses Murder Charges

Murder charges against three Daly City men who were accused of slaying a narcotics informer last month have been dismissed in Southern District Municipal Court by Judge Wilbur R. Johnson.

Judge Johnson said there was insufficient evidence to substantiate the charges against Steven M. Espinoza, 20, and against twin brothers Otto and Frank Valle, 18.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson said Monday that there is a "possibility" that charges may be refilled but that it would be "some time" before a decision is made. Meanwhile, two Daly City boys, ages 16 and 17, still are being held at Hillcrest Juvenile Home on murder charges concerning the case. All five were arrested by the sheriff's office after the body of David Salina, 19, of San Francisco, was found Oct. 13 near a road south of La Honda. Salina, who had been an informer to the sheriff's office on narcotics cases, had been shot several times.

Judgment Awarded In Colma Creek Suit

A Superior Court Jury has returned a $2,300 verdict against the city of South San Francisco and absolved the county and the San Mateo County Flood Control District following the first trial of 42 lawsuits filed as a result of Colma Creek flooding during rainstorms in 1970 and 1972.

The verdict, by a jury of eight men and four women, was returned recently following a 28-day trial before Judge James T. O'Keefe.

The plaintiff, H. B. Fuller and Co., sought $20,000 in property damages as the result of flooding during the storm of Nov. 28-29, 1970.

Defendants were South San Francisco, the county, the flood control district and the State Department of Transportation. The latter also was absolved.

In awarding the plaintiff $2,300 from South San Francisco, the jury indicated it had mitigated the damages because of the company's failure to take sufficient steps to protect its property from flooding.

In a separate action during the course of the trial, Judge O'Keefe dismissed a cross-complaint filed by South San Francisco seeking to have the county, the flood control district, the state and a number of developers and construction firms assume responsibility for any future damages awarded as the result of flood damage resulting from the storm of Oct. 22, 1972.

A total of 22 of the lawsuits were filed as a result of flooding during that storm.

The city contends that the defendants in the cross-complaint had taken over jurisdiction of Colma Creek and had assumed responsibility for keeping it clear of obstruction.

Judge O'Keefe upheld demurrers of the defendants that the city failed to state a sufficient cause of action.

Five attorneys were involved in the trial of the Fuller suit.

Richard Lemmon represented the plaintiff, Daniel J. Lanahan and Deputy Dist. Atty. Ralph Green represented the county and the flood control district. Robert Chadwick appeared on behalf of South San Francisco, and Frank McEnaney represented the State Department of Transportation.

Pacifica to Consider Launching Facility

The Pacifica City Council Nov. 25 voted, 3-2, to spend $1,000 for its share of a $10,000 facility study of a boat-launching facility at Pedro Point.

In protesting the expenditure, Councilwoman Janet Fulford, a Pedro Point resident, complained that it was "the camel putting its nose in the tent."

She also charged that a proposed parking lot to serve the launching facility would attract noise, air pollution, and loss of view from homes overlooking the lot.

However, two other residents of Pedro Point — Jim Harrison and Kitty Bouley — supported the feasibility study.

Lee Forster of Rosita Road complained, "With money getting so tight, it might be a little premature to spend money for this study."

He said that, with a study under way for a Rockaway Beach Harbor, all funds for a launching ramp should be spent on that project.

COUNCILWOMAN Grace McCarthy said the city has received complaints about persons driving along the beach to launch their boats.

Nick Gust said he could not see how parking would restrict the view, since the old railroad berm is higher than any cars would be. He said he was disgusted that every proposal for civic improvement that the Chamber of Commerce pushed (he is the chamber president) is attacked.

Lorvan explained that although he voted "no," he did not oppose the launching ramp, but that he believed any such proposal needed clarification.

City Manager Don Weidner reported that the Roman Catholic Church would sell 5 1/2 acres near the proposed site for $375,000.

Should the ramp prove feasible, Weidner said, the city could obtain 100 per cent financing from the State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development for construction, but not for land purchase.

A woman who resides on Crespi Drive complained that the ramp proposal would undercut a previous plan to develop Pedro Point as an artistic and cultural center.

Le Pacini The Big Game

What more can be said about the Big Game but that it has to rank somewhere among the 20 most exciting major college football games ever played, and must be in the top five thriller Big Games

We frankly were rooting for the Bears, for many reasons that probably would bore you, but honestly can say that we weren't greatly disappointed — or even stunned — at the outcome.

One comes to expect such finishes in Cal-Stanford games, and besides, any team that has apparently lost with less than half a minute remaining, then drives 44 yards in three plays and kicks a 50-yard field goal with two ticks left on the clock, deserves to win.

The statistics were close and truly reflected the game results, although Cal had an edge. What not many people seem to remember, unless they're Cal fans, is that Stanford got the game's big break when Cal center Jack Harrison snapped the ball over the head of punter Greg Cummins in the fourth quarter, a miscue that allowed Stanford to recover on the Cal nine-yard line and subsequently drive for a TD. That's the one that put Stanford ahead (13-10), and the play which ultimately rocked Cal back on its heels, caused them to lose their momentum, as the coaches say.

WE SUPPOSE that what really won the game was the Stanford defense, something which failed them earlier in the season, even when that was supposed to have been its strong suit. Ironically, the Indians seemed to start playing defense a little better when one half of last year's bookend All American defensive ends, Roger Stillwell, went out the week before the Big Game with pneumonia, a move which enabled substitute Duncan McCall to show what he could do, which was considerable. The first week he filled in for Stillwell for a full game he shared co-Pac-8 Player of the Week honors.

We, of course, can't pinpoint the entire blame of Stanford's defensive collapse earlier in the season to the disappointing performances of just two men — Stillwell and the other half of the bookends, Pat Donovan — but the rumors were that the two young men had gotten matched fat heads and were relying on their reputations to knock down opposing linemen.

SHORT FOOTBALL COMMENTS — Cal's wide receiver Wesley Walker caught only 14 passes all season, but four of them were for TDs, and he averaged a phenomenal 27.3 yards gained per reception. Did it occur to you that the star quarterbacks in the Midwest epic between Ohio State and Michigan were both black? That's a parlay that just wouldn't have been possible even five years ago.

Had Cornelius Greene (Ohio State) and Bobby Franklin (Michigan) come along then, at least one of the two almost certainly would have been a wide receiver or a defensive back. Speaking of Ohio State, the 49ers should draft Brian Baschnagel just to do the holding for Bruce Gossett. Or didn't you notice how Baschnagel, who's also a pretty good wide receiver, handled a couple of errant centers for kicker Tom Klaban, who got all of the glory but really deserved only half of it.

OTHER SHORT COMMENTS — Texas' Jeff Burroughs may count as the American League's MVP with a total point count of 248, but four of the next five high point makers were Oakland A's (Joe Rudi, Sal Bando, Reggie Jackson, Catfish Hunter) and they totaled 531 votes, which makes one understand why the A's, and not the Rangers, won the Western Division of the AL.

By the way, if you add the 23 points Campy Campaneris gathered, it makes those five A's together twice as good as Burroughs. Which means, we suppose, that Billy Martin is going to have to sign another Burroughs before he can pull up even with the A's.

One thing that escaped us during baseball's post-season awards — as it might have escaped many — is that National League MVP Steve Garvey also was chosen on the Sporting News' Golden Glove defensive team (picked by the players). That should once and for all shut up Lou Brock, a good hitter and great base stealer, but also an average fielder, at best, who claimed he got shafted. Garvey, obviously, didn't just collect impressive hitting statistics.

Rick Barry and Charley Johnson together are averaging almost seven steals a game, a feat which places them 1-2 (Barry first) in the NBA in steals.

LOCAL NOTES — San Francisco State's Gators finished with a disappointing 5-6 record, but the individual performance of receiver Dan Ferrigno is worth noting, as the All Far Western Conference end led the loop in receiving with 50 receptions. That gave him 125 for his four-year varsity career, which is a Gator record. He also set a Gator career mark with 23 TD RECEPTIONS. Also noteworthy was the 54-yard field goal booted by kicker Rick Faulk, which tied an FWC mark. It culminated a spectacular year of placekicking and punting for Faulk.

Jeff Wellemeyer, another Gator, via Terra Nova High and Skyline JC, seems poised for a great season with the S.F. State basketball team after a promising apprenticeship on the varsity last year. Wellemeyer, whose main asset is his strength (he's 6-4, weighs 210) and ruggedness, made his rep last year coming off the bench. He hopes to be a starter this season.

Rich Morales, the major league infielder via Westmoor and Terra Nova, has been given his unconditional release by the San Diego Padres.

THE RECENT release of Juan Marichal by the Boston Reds probably spells the end of both a glorious and yet in many ways sad career; sad because a man who won more than 200 games should have won more than 300, should have done more of everything. Marichal always will be one of those players who people will shake their heads about and say, "I wonder what he could have done if..."

In Marichal's case, the "ifs" almost always included health. Either Juan was one of the most injury prone, physically weak players in the majors, or he was the champion of the psychosomatics, or both.

We don't mean to imply that he was faking when, for example, in his rookie year his achilles tendon was almost severed by a flying spike while he was covering first. We're talking about ailments that are often hard to prove with just X-rays, like the back and sinus problems, and others of their ilk. They seemed to plague Marichal, especially when it appeared he was heading for a phenomenal season.

IT WAS ALMOST as if he was afraid of too much success, as if he would rather settle for the 23 victories, because people would have expected too much of him had he won the 30.

Another factor we've always thought might have hampered Marichal's career was the emergence of Sandy Koufax. Marichal hit his peak. In 1963, for example, Marichal had as many wins as Koufax (25), but Marichal lost eight, and Koufax dropped only five. Marichal struck out 248, but Koufax struck out 306. Marichal had an ERA of 2.41, but Sandy's was 1.88. Marichal completed 18 games, Koufax 20. In '64, Marichal had a winning percentage of .724 but Koufax beat him out with a .792. Marichal's ERA was 2.48, Koufax's 1.74. In '65, Juan won 22, but Koufax won 26. Marichal had a 2.13 ERA, but Sandy's was 2.04. Juan finished 24 games, Sandy 27. In '66, Marichal 25, Koufax 27. Juan's ERA was 2.23, Sandy's, 1.73. Marichal struck out 222, Koufax fanned 317. Juan completed 25, Sandy 27.

When Koufax's great years were finally over, so were Marichal's. Koufax was always just a little bit better, and the Dodgers were always just a little bit better, so they got the national attention that the Giants and Marichal might have had had not Koufax come along when he did. We don't think that Marichal could ever get over being the greatest right-handed pitcher of his era being out-shined by the greatest southpaw pitcher of his era

South S.F. Toppled Last Minute S.M. Triumph

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Post Sports Writer

For the second straight week, San Mateo High football coach Buz Williams felt like kissing his corner back.

For the second straight week, senior Dave Burton was instrumental in keeping the Bearcats' perfect record intact.

Thursday at College of San Mateo, Burton's interception on a strange pass play set up the final touchdown in San Mateo's last-minute 25-21 win over South San Francisco in the first annual

The week before, Burton had come up with a last-minute interception to save a San Mateo win in the last regular season game against Burlingame.

But in that game San Mateo had been leading. Thursday the Bearcats were behind and within 2:37 of extinction. South City held a 21-18 lead and had used up four minutes driving from its own 27 to a third and seven at the San Mateo 30.

Then came a strange call.

SSF quarterback Frank Cesarz had completed six of seven passes for 120 yards already. But instead of passing, he handed off to back Tali Ena, who ran right while Cesarz circled out to the left. On the flea-flicker, Ena lobbed back to Cesarz, who had his head turned back to watch the ball.

Burton had plenty of time to step in front, snatch the ball and return 62 yards to the Warrior 15. San Mateo fullback Scott Tarleton bulled three times for five, six and four yards and the winning points.

On SSF's next play from scrimmage Mark Jackson intercepted a Cesarz pass over the middle with 0:58 left to ice the game.

At first, Burton seemed an unlikely candidate to repeat as Hero of the Week. He'd lost several battles to top South City receiver Paul Bachold, who caught four passes for 90 yards.

"On the first pass I didn't really have him," said Burton. "The next, I had him covered, and I thought I'd get an interception, but he outjumped me. He's really good."

"But on the last one, I saw Cesarz hand off to Ena and come running out to the side, and I knew what it was going to be. That's the kind of stuff we'll play in the park."

SSF entered the game with an 8-2 mark (having won eight straight) and a reputation for solid, physical football. The reputation was well-founded.

The Warriors took the opening kickoff and, with the aid of a 36-yard Cesarz-Bachold pass, scored after eating up almost five minutes of clock. The Warrior line, which outgained the Bearcats' considerably, looked unbeatable.

SSF stopped Tarleton, the MPL's leading rusher, on San Mateo's first drive. But Bearcat halfback Jeff Clarke broke through twice, the first time for a key 26-yard gain and the second for a 27-yard TD.

San Mateo took the lead after Mark Davis' recovery of an SSF fumble at the Bearcat 37. Clarke picked up a fourth and five situation, QB Dave Savidge hit John Sievers for 22 yards to the SSF eight. Savidge sneaked

END OF THE LINE

San Mateo middle linebacker Donald Ford (white jersey) wrestles with South San Francisco's running back Bob Luster during Peninsula Championship game Thursday. Ford led Bearcats in tackles.

the final eight yards after left guard Jim Ratcliffe took out two Warrior defenders.

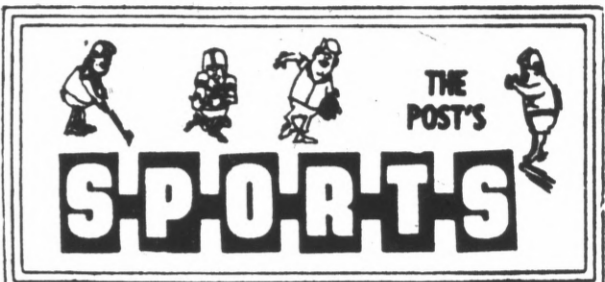

SSF came right back, going 49 yards in six plays, including two first-down passes by Cesarz. Bob Luster scored his second TD from four yards out and Victor Arias' second PAT made it 14-12 SSF at the half.

SSF opened the second half by picking off a Savidge pass and going 49 yards to score. Ena got 13, Luster got 13 and Cesarz hit Bachold for 20 yards to put the Warriors in position for Jim Eckstein's four-yard capper. Arias made it 21-12.

San Mateo drove once, but coughed up a fumble at the SSF five.

But San Mateo held for two downs and got a break. On the third Luster attempted a quick kick from the five, but kicked the ground before he kicked the ball, which squibbed out of bounds on the SSF 22.

Savidge picked up 12 and Tarleton six, but after that SSF stiffened. It took San Mateo five plays from the two, with a first down and a penalty sandwiched in, to break SSF's goal line defense. Clarke carried in from the one on fourth down

The conversion failed for the third time the SSF still led 21-18.

Then came the improbable finish as SSF, with its three-point lead, started wiping out the remaining minutes — and succeeding as it had all afternoon until Burton's interception.

Warrior coach Ray DeJong had said before the game SSF had to stop Tarleton up the middle and Clarke wide. The Warriors held Tarleton to 12 yards in the first half, and Clarke to 26 in the second, but could never stop both.

Tarleton with 99 yards; his total for San Mateo's 10-0 season was 1,372 yards. Clarke, a junior, got 111 for a season total of 1,023.

"We didn't want to run up the middle much," said San Mateo coach Buz Williams, who had announced his retirement two weeks earlier. "Our plan was to go off tackle, and go wide, attacking the perimeter. That's where we thought we were strongest and they were weakest."

"Let's face it. We had to be lucky to win."

"But this team had a lot of courage and poise... and they've done this kind of thing in the fourth quarter before when they had to. They plan to be lucky."

Post All-County Team

Jim Freitas, the Serra High quarterback who set a NorCal single season record by throwing 30 touchdown passes, was named Most Valuable Player on the annual Post All-County prep grid team announced Monday.

Freitas broke the season yardage records set by his brother, Jesse Freitas Jr., who will be starting for the San Diego Chargers in New York tomorrow.

Four other Padres joined Freitas on the first team — wide receiver John Caselli, who scored 104 points; junior tight end Rich Allen; linebacker Brad Corsiglia and defensive back Randy Gomez.

The other first-team receiver was Woodside High's Tim Doyle, the only other junior on the first team.

In the backfield with Freitas was Dewey Bohling, a Hillsdale halfback who averaged 9.3 yards per carry; Carlmont High's Bill Ring, who set an SPAL single season rushing record; and San Mateo High's Scott Tarleton, who picked up 1,372 yards to help forge the Bearcats' perfect record.

The offensive line was one of the smallest ever chosen; the biggest man was a repeater from last year's All-County team, Dan Lehr of Capuchino (6-3, 234). San Mateo guard Jim Ratcliffe earned unusual honors in his own league, the MPL: he was named Offensive Lineman of the Year, and also shared Defensive Lineman of the Year status.

Other stalwarts on the All-County front were Tim Kobayashi of Carlmont, Kevin McBride of Terra Nova and Cory Rickrode of South San Francisco.

Dean Triggas from El Camino, one of the four defensive linemen named, proved that deafness needn't be a handicap to performance. Triggas was joined by Dave Weber and Rich Miller from Carlmont and Wilbur Matsue from Serramonte.

The linebackers were Serra's Brad Corsiglia, Aragon's Jim Perris and Westmoor's Dan Tong.

The four-man defensive backfield included several players who were top offensive receivers as well. The last line of defense, Frank Duncan of Jefferson, Randy Gomez of Serra, Greg Valentine of Carlmont and Paul Bachold of South City.

Cited for special mention was SSF return man Jeff Yock, who took five kicks back for touchdowns during the season.

Compromise Reached

Commissioners Oppose SSF Linear Park

South San Francisco city officials have ruled out any linear park along Colma Creek from Spruce Ave. to the Bay, but are leaving open the possibility of developing such a parkway from that Spruce Avenue point to the Colma city limits.

The decision came at a special joint meeting of the Planning and Park and Recreation Commissions, and apparently ended the recent bickering over the feasibility of the parkway.

The linear park is proposed in the city's general plan and would consist of a strip of land with space for a foot and bicycle path on the sides of Colma Creek from Orange Park to the bay. But the chance of the park being built along the approximately 2.5 section of the canal seemed dim at the outset, because of the cost involved and lack of room for it.

Although there have been no actual studies to determine cost, estimates have ranged into the "millions of dollars" because of the need to purchase sufficient land for the park. As for space, there are too many physical obstacles, including railroad tracks, roadway overpasses and bordering businesses that make a continual parkway impossible.

However, as long as the proposal is still in the general plan, there was fear that it would stall the Colma Creek Flood Control Project. The engineering plans for that project would have to conform with the general plan in order for the Board of Supervisors to approve it. The current plans, drawn up by the engineering consultants Wilsey and Ham, do not include the parkway.

Thus the joint meeting was scheduled to arrive at a final determination of whether to go ahead with preparations to develop the parkway or move towards amending the general plan so that it agrees with the flood control project plans.

The commissioners had little choice though, as they were told by Park and Recreation Director Dick Milkovich that it was "virtually impossible to have a linear park from Spruce to the bay without spending virtually millions of dollars."

In a report on the matter, Milkovich and City Planner David Hale recommended that the parkway from Spruce Ave. down to the bay be eliminated from further consideration, and that the staffs make a study on which portions of the creek upstream from Spruce to the Colma city limits could be used for a parkway.

The commissioners said they would support the dropping of the parkway as it stands now from the general plan, as long as it could be replaced at the same time with the new plans for a parkway.

Old Glory

New Name For Mental Recovery

Mental Health Recovery, Inc. has a new name, "Caminar."

Caminar is a Spanish verb meaning to travel forward, to progress, to prosper.

Not only is the name suitable, according to Executive Director Charlie Richmond, but it will eliminate confusion with other agencies, it was explained.

Board of Directors President Benjamin W. Frankel said "The decision to change the name of the non-profit corporation was the result of dissatisfaction with the former name's length, general inappropriateness to its work and plans for the future, as well as the matter of confusion."

Caminar is responsible for El Camino House, a transitional after-care residence for persons recovering from psychiatric illness; Pedregal House, a residential facility for young people with behavioral and/or drug related problems; Redwood House, a short term residence and crisis center; and the Satellite Housing Program where people live in apartments in the community while receiving aid and counseling during a rehabilitation period.

The organization hopes to open additional residential projects to meet existing need. To do so it needs public financial support. Donations may be sent to Caminar's offices at 720 El Camino Real, Belmont, 94002.

DC Man Found Dead

A Daly City man died of apparent carbon monoxide poisoning Sunday after he was struck on the head by an auto part while working on a car in the nearly closed garage at his home, the coroner's office reports.

Coroner's Investigator Robert Bergstrom said that Charles W. Eades, 33, an auto mechanic, had been working on the car with the engine running and the garage door only slightly open.

Eades' wife, Arlene, discovered her husband's body under the car at 7:30 p.m. when she returned home from shopping. The engine of the car was still running, she said.

Bergstrom reported that Eades apparently was removing the bell housing from the car when it fell and struck him on the head, probably knocking him out. It is possible that Eades had been partially overcome by the fumes while removing the housing, the investigator speculated.

In addition to his wife, Eades is survived by three children.

Robbers Hit Bruno Store

Two men robbed the 7-11 store at 2100 Crestmoor Drive, San Bruno Sunday morning of an undetermined amount of cash, police report.

According to police, the men walked into the store and after a short time, one man allegedly brandished a 12-inch butcher knife and demanded that the store clerk hand over the money in both cash registers.

The men fled the store and escaped in a waiting vehicle.

Cow Palace Fire Quenched

A small fire at the Cow Palace complex in Daly City caused an estimated $1,000 in damage to a detached building Sunday.

Battalion Chief John Roy said the blaze was confined to a women's restroom near the cafeteria section of the exhibition hall.

"NO MONEY SANTA"

Santa and accountant Al Belotz discuss financial problems for Daly City Operation Santa Claus. Belotz is telling Santa Claus that he is in great need of donations from those who would share their blessings with those less fortunate. Operation Santa Claus is a community effort that endeavors to brighten the holiday season for residents who face a less than enjoyable Christmas. Individuals, service clubs and organizations, the City of Daly City, churches and the children of Daly City join together at this time to make Operation Santa Claus the success it has been over the past 25 years. Donations may be sent to Chamber of Commerce office at 6767 Mission St., Daly City, CA 94014.

South San Francisco May Amend Controversial Trailer Ordinance

The South San Francisco Planning Commission Nov. 26 directed its staff to study amendment of a hotly contested ordinance that relates to the storage and parking of trailers and other camp cars in the city.

The action opens what appears will be a long, controversial process as some city residents attempt to change the existing trailer ordinance, adopted in 1943 and amended in 1947, virtually restricts trailers and other camp cars from parking on city streets or on the property of the vehicle's owner.

Various South San Francisco owners of such "recreational vehicles" say the ordinance discriminates against them and want it repealed. One of the leaders in the repeal move, Annette Balthazar of 140 Francisco, said she has received the support of at least 200 city residents so far.

The planning commissioners voted unanimously to study the situation after receiving a report from Zoning Administrator William Costanzo, and listening to the comments of some of the 60 persons attending.

Costanzo said there were many problems related to trailers and camp cars and presented numerous slides showing the vehicles parked illegally throughout the city on driveways, streets and lawns.

Among Costanzo's findings:

Parking or storage of a trailer or a similar vehicle in the street or driveway can cause visibility problems for other motorists entering or backing out of a driveway. Likewise, it can block the view of the sidewalk for a driver backing out of a driveway, thereby endangering pedestrians.

Present zoning laws will not permit the storage of such vehicles in the required front, side or rear yard setbacks.

Trailers have in the past been used as extra sleeping rooms, rental units, play rooms and for other uses that are contrary to the intent of the zoning ordinance and the density outlines of the general plan.

The use of trailers and similar vehicles is on the increase, and established places for storing such vehicles are few and far between. No such storage facility exists in South San Francisco.

Present parking regulations do not provide for the influx of visitors traveling and stopping over in these types of vehicles.

The word "trailer" applies to not only recreation vehicles, but to much larger rolling stock, as example. Costanzo showed photos of truck trailer rigs that were parked on the streets, and said they were a danger.

Costanzo also estimated that because of the complexity of the issue, it could take from 6½ to 10½ months before the matter goes to the City Council for a final vote. A preliminary staff report and a draft of an amended ordinance, the first phase of the process, is expected to be ready in six to 12 weeks.

All but one of the speakers favored a change in the ordinance.

Photo processing stands in Belmont and San Bruno were both robbed Nov. 26 by bandits. The San Bruno robbery was the second to occur at the Foto-Mat stand in Pacific Heights Shopping Center in as many days.

Belmont police reported Wednesday the same group of bandits may have been responsible for the Tuesday robberies in both cities.

Clerk Yolanda M. Garza was at work inside the stand in San Bruno about 2:45 p.m. Nov. 26 when a man approached, grabbed her by the neck and demanded money. She complied, and the thief fled with about $90.

Later in the day, two young men approached the Foto-Mat stand at 1200 El Camino Real in Belmont about 7:25 p.m. One of the men pointed a pistol at clerk Janice L. So and said, "Hand over the money or else."

The thieves then fled with about $173 from the Belmont robbery.

The thieves in both robberies were described as young white males. In both instances, the robbers fled from the photo processing stands on foot.

The first robbery occurred Nov. 25 about 7 p.m. at the San Bruno stand when the attendant was approached by a masked man who produced a gun.

San Bruno police said the robber held a gun to the head of a 17-year-old attendant and demanded money from the cash drawer.

Police are not yet certain if the Monday robbery in San Bruno is related to the thefts that occurred Tuesday.

Bobbi Adams: The Multi-Talented Aviatrix

By GEORGE GOLDING
Post Staff Writer

"There are jobs available in aviation if you want them, and if you're willing to work. It shows, I've got three of them."

Bobbi, (Mrs. Charles) Adams, is 28. She is a stewardess, an aircraft salesperson, and an airline pilot.

There is one other job she wants: the left-hand seat in the "front office" of a major airline, the job of pilot, the title of captain.

Bobbi Adams flies for STOL, a San Rafael-based supplementary airline which operates into and out of several smaller cities around the Bay Area and Northern California.

"I've been promoted to VFR Captain," she says. "Things are looking up. I'm an IFR co-pilot, but a VFR Captain."

In aviation terminology, VFR means "visual flight rules," and translates as weather good enough to see through. IFR is "instrument flight rules," lousy weather.

STOL's insurance company requires that its pilots have 2000 hours before being allowed to fly IFR. Bobbi's log book holds only about 1000.

"I enjoy it," she explains. "People paying me to fly their airplanes is a little different than I've had it for the last four years."

During those four years, Bobbi and her husband, (an airline pilot) have invested approximately $10,000 in her flying skills.

In her wallet, the front two "windows" are occupied by flying licenses, a jet flight engineer's ticket and a commercial pilot's license with multi-engine and instrument ratings.

The flight engineer's course cost $4500, plus three months off without pay, from her job as a United stewardess.

"If you go to an airline and you've passed even the writtens, for flight engineer, they know you have the brains and knowledge and gumption to get through the most difficult part."

She estimates another $5,000 invested in flight training.

Now, all she needs to do, is get hired.

"The future looks extremely bright," she says.

"I have my applications in with all the airlines, and I keep updating them as needed. It all depends on how soon they hire, how soon people get back off furlough, on the national economic scene."

"Right now, I'm happy. I enjoy what I'm doing in all three jobs."

At 28, Bobbi — if she were a man — would be almost too old to honestly expect to be hired as a pilot for a major airline.

A male pilot of 28 would look forward to two to four years of no major airline hiring, at which time the carriers would likely be looking for younger men.

"The opportunities are better for women I know a lot of guys right now who almost wish they were women."

"They send in an application to the airline, they get a stereotyped postcard, or nothing. I send in an application to the same company, and I get a personal letter from the vice president. It's still a rejection, but they know I'm here."

"With the equality in employment movement, they know they're going to have to hire women, and there are not that many qualified women."

BOBBI ADAMS

The younger girls, those who just went into the Navy, they're 18 or 19, they're going to be in a good position when they get out in a couple of years, if they want to get into the airlines.

It is good to be a woman at a time like this. The opportunities are great, but it still needs to be pioneered. There are too few women in commercial aviation. All kinds of doors are opening up."

The opportunities, she says, are in flight training and aircraft sales, in charter piloting, and in flight training.

Although there have been great women aviators for many years, "women are still an oddity in this field."

"I wish I had a sister to encourage into aviation."

Instead, she encourages her sister stewardesses, and "we have increased 15 to 20 per cent in women enrollment" in flight training.

Bobbi's most recent job is as aircraft salesperson at Skyway Aviation, the Cessna dealership at San Mateo County Airport at San Carlos.

"I tell them, the stewardesses, they can learn," she says, that it's not too difficult.

"I have wanted to fly since I was very tiny."

"I grew up in a very small town; Gallup, N.M. There were neither the facilities nor the money for me to learn to fly. I always kept it in the back of my mind, and later decided that since I couldn't learn to fly, I'd be a stewardess."

"I got to talking to the pilots, and they told me that at least I could get a private license, but I never got the time and the money together until 1970."

PNA Confab Slated in Brisbane

An Environmental Protection Agency spokesman stated that there are four areas wherein energy savings in waste management can be made. They are: source reduction, collection and disposal of waste, increased recycling of materials, direct conversion of waste to energy.

These subjects and others, such as the impact of possible environmental legislation on industry, will be explored during Peninsula Manufacturers Association's industrial waste management seminar scheduled for Dec. 5.

It has been estimated that the Bay Area currently generates 6.6 million tons of rubbish annually. In an effort to better identify Peninsula industry's contribution, PMA's Energy Conservation Committee prepared a waste audit questionnaire designed to provide some quantitative data obtained from representative companies. Information obtained will serve to illustrate the potential for conservation of energy and materials to be found in lowly refuse.

The day long seminar will be held at the Sunset Scavenger Co. plant in Brisbane and includes a tour of the world's largest solid waste transfer and separation center conducted by Sunset's president, Leonard Steffanelli.

Warning Issued By PG&E

Peninsula residents were cautioned Monday by Pacific Gas and Electric Co., to beware of callers at the door who imply they are company employees.

The warning was prompted by reports from company customers indicating attempts at solicitation which appear to be deliberate efforts to confuse and con the householder into believing that a PG&E representative is soliciting signatures on a petition, contributions of money, or both.

Other customer reports indicate persons who could be mistaken for PG&E employees wanting to check appliances or pilot lights might gain entry with criminal intent, the company said.

All PG&E employees carry identification and are instructed to identify themselves on house calls, the PG&E warning said.

Anyone doubting the identity of a person calling at a residence or place of business, particularly when no PG&E representative has been asked to call, should ask for this identification, the utility said.

Moreover, the householder or businessperson may call the local PG&E office for confirmation that the individual is actually a company employee.

Jogging Can Be Psychic Therapy

Mental Health Group Meets in San Mateo

By JOHN HORGAN
Last week had been a trying one indeed. There had been simply too many days which had been sadly marked by arguments, disagreements, petty bickering and a host of other nagging differences.

The phone had been a particularly nettlesome intrusion almost hourly throughout several business days. Bills had come due. There were more than enough good reasons to welcome the weekend gratefully.

But how to purge the tired soul of all that had gone before? Would it be an extra martini? Some escapist entertainment perhaps? An evening out? No. It would be none of those. A run in the woods would be more purgative than anything else.

Dinner Tickets Available

The public may obtain tickets for the annual Christmas dinner party for foreign students at the College of San Mateo, Wednesday, Dec. 18, the Community International Service Committee, sponsoring, announces.

Featured entertainment will be provided by the El Camino High School "Road Troupe" — 45 South San Francisco teenage singers, actors, dancers and stage band musicians who have performed locally and in Germany and Denmark.

The dinner involves students from Canada, Skyline and Menlo colleges, and from the College of Notre Dame and College of San Mateo. The committee sponsoring consists of representatives from more than 20 service clubs and charitable organizations.

Dinner reservations may be made by phone by calling Mrs. Penny Robertson or Mrs. Vivian Ellis at the American National Red Cross office in Burlingame. Tickets may also be obtained by sending a check for $5 to the Burlingame office, payable to the sponsoring committee, Mrs. Cecil Osborne, chairman, announces.

Mailing address on reservations is American National Red Cross, P.O. Box 228, Burlingame 94010.

Saturday morning came up bright. The sun was out. The fog had receded back into the verdant hills beyond the Crystal Springs Lakes. There was just the slightest suggestion of a breeze. Autumn leaves were strewn all up and down the deserted streets.

What better time to take a jog in the tranquil, shaded environs of Hillsborough, a runner's paradise. Although it has generally been ignored as a jogger's favored area, that little burg possesses some of the finest natural running routes in San Mateo County.

There are any number of routes to be tried there. Of course there are hills. There are also countless varieties of trees. Water can be found there too. The solitude in the morning is stimulating.

A glide through the town can set the soul at ease for the rest of the day. While ambling along your chosen path at your own pace, take note of the minidramas occurring all around you. There are birds, squirrels, even an occasional rabbit or deer to lend notes of psychic calm to your run.

I drove to my chosen spot near a street lined with eucalyptus trees. I had prepared a flagon of cold orange juice to be there waiting for me when I finished my joyous exercise.

I alighted from my car, walked 100 yards or so and then began a slow, easy, free-flowing run along the street. Turning west, I ran gently beneath the towering eucalyptus and inhaled the sweet aroma of the wet earth, the dew-laden grass, the clean morning air and the trees themselves. The combination was intoxicating.

As I rambled along effortlessly, letting the morning wash over me, I felt as if I could probably keep running for hours. It was an exhilarating experience. The final mile was so painless that I had to try another, extra 1/4 mile. The stroll back to the car was welcome too. I knew that a glass of orange juice was waiting for me.

Relaxed, content, I sipped the liquid underneath a tree as I towed off. A curious squirrel scrambled down to have a better look. He then hustled right back to his perch.

Let the week be a bummer. I've got my own brand of therapy. And it's free.

The annual meeting of the membership of Mental Health Association of San Mateo County, was held at the Shadows Restaurant in San Mateo, Nov. 20.

Mrs. James P. Young, president of the association, announced that mental health's direction '75 will be looking to increased community participation including all ethnic groups in geographic regions of San Mateo County.

Increased programming for the eight Friendship Centers and more educational seminars for the public in conjunction with community colleges. Nomination of officers for 1975 also was on the agenda.

The main speaker was Sen. Arlen Gregorio, re-elected to serve another term in the California State Senate. His topic was "Alcoholism," new goals, programming and funding under the legislature for the coming year.

Barbara Bladen

Barbara Bladen is on vacation. Her column will be resumed on her return.

By JACK RUSSELL
Good intentions do not necessarily produce good theater.

This maxim, which might have been found in the writings of Horatio Alger, Jr. himself, serves well to describe the fiasco of American Conservatory Theater's version of a world premiere for "Horatio" by Ron Whyte Tuesday night at the Geary Theater.

Termed a play with music, the jumbled production purports to tell the rather simple-minded life of Horatio Alger with his "rags to riches" theme as it applies to American life.

Cultural Exhibit

Rodney D'Acquisto's sixth grade class at Westlake School in Daly City recently assembled an exhibit of Mexican wares to reflect that country's customs. Shown displaying a Mexican platter are students Jackie Nassab, 12, and Steve Koerpel, 11.

Planned Parenthood Hires Physician

Planned Parenthood Association San Mateo County, in its continuing expansion program to meet growing community needs, has hired its first full-time physician.

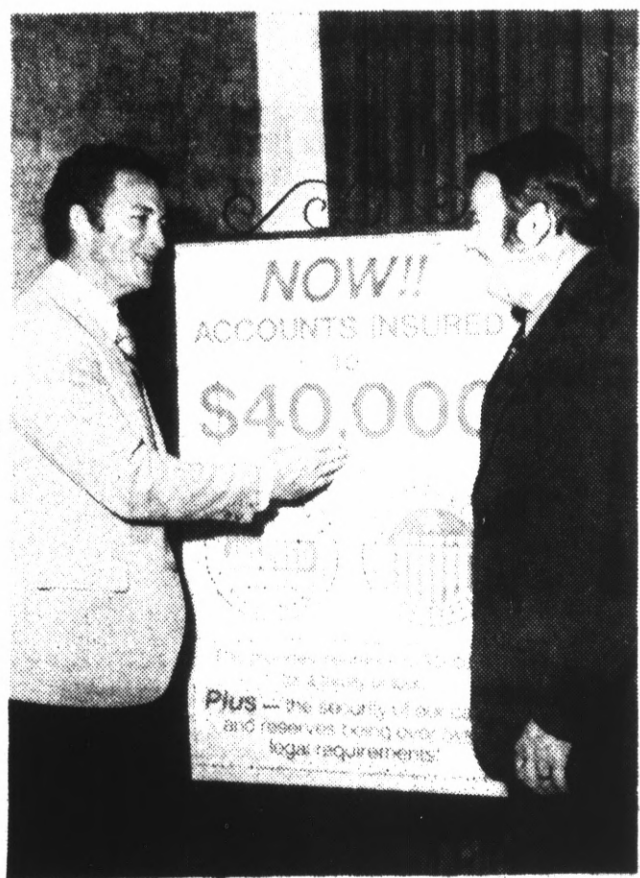

She is Armand M. Sittig, M.D., of Palo Alto, who received her degree from the University of Texas, Medical Branch, Galveston, in 1971, and served her internship at Harkness Hospital, San Francisco and her residency, in obstetrics and gynecology at Highland Hospital, Oakland.

Earlier this year, Dr. Sittig spent one month at the largest OB-GYN teaching hospital in Warsaw, Poland, studying teaching methods, and two months in England under the auspices of the Royal College of Midwives, observing midwifery and community nursing procedures.

With the addition of Dr. Sittig to the staff, together with the use of Nurse-Practitioners, Patrick J. Sheeran, Executive Director, said that it will now be possible to provide family planning clinical services on an all-day basis with flexible schedules designed to serve clients. There will also be some Saturday and evening clinics, and when Dr. Sittig's operation gets into full gear, she will also be available at the Pacifica and Redwood City clinics on pre-arranged schedules.

Dr. Sittig will continue with the Planned Parenthood program of working with physicians throughout San Mateo County, and will provide guidance to the agency's community-wide education program. Sheeran said, Planned Parenthood will continue its vasectomy program with physicians from the community staffing the clinics.

He hailed the addition of Dr. Sittig to the staff as a "necessary part of the continued growth of Planned Parenthood Association/San Mateo County in its continuing effort to provide increased services to the community and to improve upon the high standards of excellence of such service."

Protection Doubled

American Savings' president William J. Popejoy (left) and Martin Carlson, assistant vice president and manager of the Daly City/Westlake office of American Savings, 5 Southgate Ave., emphasize that insurance on customer savings accounts is being increased to $40,000. Multiple accounts for a family of four may then be insured to $560,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

ACT's 'Horatio' Is Anything But Heroic

Whyte and his cohort Mel Marvin, who wrote the banal music and lyrics, have attempted to say something about America today by looking at a man whose works ran into the 17 millions in publication.

Was there a message after two interminable acts? Perhaps. Alger's death scene was well-handled by a bright new actor, Daniel Davis. In mock heroic fashion he declares that his life has been a failure — that he has never done anything in his life well except write children's books. Does this apply to the United States in 1974? Well, Director James Dunn has a giant Stars and Stripes dangling from a huge wooden eagle draped over his deathbed while the flag-carrying cast parades around the set.

Dunn directs the play in the frantic style embodied by William Ball with a sure lack of taste.

The most grotesque of all occurs in a Paris morgue which Alger visits as a young man. The broad and bawdy humor was done in such poor style that one hopes that Dunn sends his cast down across town to the Folies to see how burlesque should play.

Some fine actresses are reduced to caricature in this one.

Fredi Ostler, who was so impressive in the Ashland Shakespeare Festival, simply croaks her way about as the French mistress, Elsie Langtry. The fact that she is roundly applauded while more attractive musicians are playing for pennies in the street outside the Geary attests to the cult-following of ACT.

Similarly wasted are Joy Carlin who is becoming a parody as the mother; Deborah May as sweet Melinda and Marrian Walters as Martha.

Raye Birk camps outrageously as the phrenologist,

Claremont although the broad style of acting serves better in the interspersed skits on "Ragged Dick," one of Alger's better-known works.

Only Megan Elizabeth Cole, a truly fine actress, can overcome the problems in the script and also with a balky bicycle on opening night. She skirted the pitfalls of the bike and the dialogue with a bravura performance as the sculptress who befriends Alger.

Charles Lanyer is fine as Alger's lifelong friend, O'Connor and that veteran actor, Sydney Walker, remembered from his roles 20 years ago with the Inter-players, is outstanding as Alger's damnation-preaching father.

The one tender scene in the play — a marvelous deaf and dumb pantomime between Alger and a young boy he had befriended — was marred by the tension created in the audience in expecting some tasteless prank to break the mood.

Costumes by J. Allen Highfill were bizarre but the set by Ralph Funicello was appropriate for the mood. "Horatio" makes one wonder about the standards being applied today by Ball as his company gains sleekness.

Thus far this season there has been only one success, "Cyran," which has been seen now for three seasons.

While Los Angeles is basking in some magnificent theater at the Taper Forum the touted ACT company appears to be resting on its laurels.

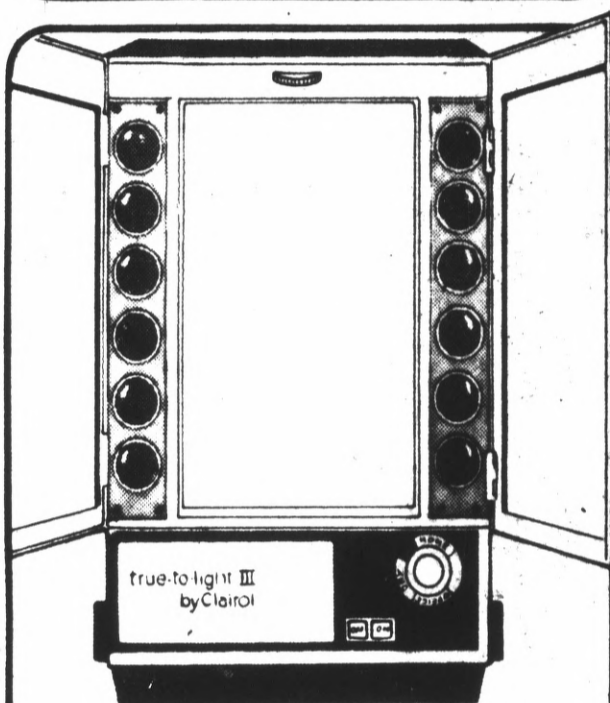

Perhaps "Jumpers" by Tom Stoppard will be the production to save the season. We trust so, having admired Ball since that very first press conference he held in the Bay Area in Atherton seven years ago.

Dramatic Rescue of DC Men

The son of a San Mateo police officer may be cited for heroism in the rescue of a severely-injured motorboat accident victim Saturday night involving two Daly City men.

Stanley Cohelan Jr., 27, of 236 Ryder Street, San Mateo, crawled 400 yards out on a dark bay sandbar with a flashlight to guide in a rescue helicopter, according to police records.

The injured man was flown to Peninsula Hospital, where he was in stable but serious condition yesterday. He was one of three thrown from a small speedboat in a sudden turn half mile off Coyote Point at 4:50 p.m. He had been gashed by the boat's motor.

San Mateo police indicated that they would forward the report to authorities for special commendation.

Most severely injured of the three was Gus Kastoras, 21, of San Francisco. Also injured was one of his two companions, Angelo Leonarditis, 23, of 475 90th St., Daly City, who was treated and released at Mills Memorial Hospital.

A third occupant of the boat, Chris Kasidiaris, 21, also of 475 90th St., Daly City was not hurt.

The two-stage rescue began immediately after the three were thrown into the water. According to Officer Robert E. Roller, the first to be pitched out was Kastoras, who was seen by his companions to go into the motor as he went under, and who was gashed badly on the lower back and his ankle broken by the propeller of the 12-foot inboard speedboat.

Leonarditis and Kasidiaris swam to Kastoras and assisted the youth, bleeding heavily, to a muddy sand bar 400 yards from shore.

The boat, with no operator, disappeared going south.

As darkness began to fall, and despite the fact that none of the three had life jackets, Kasidiaris swam to the city dump, where he summoned police, and Leonarditis swam to Ryder Street, San Mateo, where he reached two juveniles who took him to the nearby home of San Mateo Police Capt. Stanley Cohelan's son, Stanley Jr.

Cohelan and Patrick Wait ran to the shore to assist.

Cohelan took a flashlight and crawled 400 yards out to the sandbar where the victim, bleeding profusely and in great pain, lay.

Meanwhile, Officer Roller, responding, communicated with Cohelan, asking questions with his loud speaker and being answered by blinks of the flashlight, as darkness fell. Roller summoned a Coast Guard helicopter, it being determined that the victim could not be moved normally because of injuries.

By radio, Roller brought the helicopter to his car lights, and then to the victim, with Cohelan signaling. Then Roller took Kasidiaris and Wait and went to Ryder Street, where an ambulance had arrived to pick up Leonarditis. Kastoras went into immediate surgery.

Meeting Set By Consumers

A public meeting has been called for 7:45 p.m. Dec. 10 at San Bruno Public Library to initiate a consumer action group for north San Mateo county.

Helen Murawski, Pacifica, is coordinating the organization of the "North Peninsula Consumer Action" group.

Karen Zahn, of the three-year-old San Francisco Consumer Action unit will outline goals, plans and problems.

'Puzzling' Fire Set

A "puzzling" fire burned out the garage of the Tony Lazcano home at 532 Vista Court, Millbrae, Saturday night.

Fire Inspector Edward Williams said the fire started when no one was home, and no cause has yet been determined.

The contents and the interior of the building burned out, he said, but the garage is separate from the Lazcano house and there was no damage to the dwelling. Inspector Williams said the 7 p.m. blaze was spotted by neighbors, and quickly extinguished when firemen got to the scene.

"There was no pattern to indicate spontaneous combustion," he said, "it's a puzzler."

Imports, Musicland, and Melart's have recently opened. Hamburger Haven, as the name may indicate specializes in many varieties of hamburgers plus serving breakfast and full course dinners. In addition The Haven has a new cocktail lounge, the first for Tanforan.

Sun Valley Imports has a complete line of gifts from the Orient and the World, in addition to unpainted statues.

Musicland has one of the most extensive selections of records and tapes to be found anywhere. They also feature musical instruments, stereo tape players, and related merchandise.

Melart's specializes in children's and infant wear and carries the country's top brands in their Tanforan store. According to Art Rosen, owner of Melart's, great merchandise and special attention to customer service are a rule at Melart's.

Tanforan's sixth new store to open is Plant World. Located on the lower level by the statue of Seabiscuit, the store is a virtual paradise of house plants. Owner/Manager, Dennis MacPherson, states that more and more people are turning to live plants to decorate their homes and offices and Plant World is offering as big a selection as possible.

Shuttle To Dickens Fair

Every few minutes a bus leaves Union Square (opposite the St. Francis Hotel, in the heart of downtown San Francisco), bound for the vivid re-creation of Christmas Past within the cheerful interior of a vast warehouse in the San Francisco Produce Market—the Yuletide world of Charles Dickens and 19th century London at the Great Dickens Christmas Fair & Pickwick Comic Annual.

Within the warehouse, 20th century visitors will discover "Christmas Past" as represented by winding streets lined with the Victorian-styled shops and stalls of over 100 craftsmen offering handcrafted items with a 19th century theme and two dozen caterers featuring the "taste delights" of Dickens' time.

The five theaters within the Dickens Fair display continuous entertainments

Front Entrance to Tanforan Re-opens

The El Camino entrance to Mall shops and the west parking area has just re-opened for customer use.

The area has been closed to customers for the past 10 months due to extensive expansion work at Tanforan.

Interior work is continuing to ready a four-theatre complex for opening in mid-December. The following stores are located in the west Mall area: Innerspace Environments; Pacific Savings and Loan; Hotel; American Handicrafts; Tanforan Electro Sound; Little Ol' Suitmaker; and Tanforan Camera.

Real Estate Seminars Set

Realtors in the state may soon help many housing buyers obtain more favorable mortgage financing and lower interest rates, C. Larry Hoag of Downey, president of the California Association of Realtors, said today.

The 75,000-member association is putting together a crash program of seminars, he said, to brief its members on the significance and limitations of a recent California Supreme Court decision. The court, in Tucker v. Lassen Savings and Loan Association, held that so-called "due-on-sale" clauses in certain cases, are unenforceable.

"This means," Hoag commented, "that in some circumstances a mortgage lender cannot call the loan when the owner sells his house. The buyer could then take over the loan at the interest rate already on the mortgage. Financing would be easier and interest rates down, both a break for the buyer, particularly in these times."

He stressed, however, that this could happen only under certain circumstances.

"It's such a complicated case," he said, "that we are planning two seminars first just for the attorneys advising our 173 boards of Realtors around the state. They'll be addressed by a panel of some of California's foremost attorneys on real estate law."

"More important to the public," he said, "we'll follow that immediately with a series of 16 seminars to brief Realtors and their sales associates. They can then advise their clients, using guidelines, forms, and advice that stay well within the limitations of this method."

The 16 seminars are scheduled for Dec. 10-19, and Dec. 17-20, two each day. Each will last three hours and will feature a panel of attorneys and knowledgeable realtors, Hoag said.

The Tucker v. Lassen decision involved property purchased by three buyers who then resold it on a land sale contract. A land contract is a form of installment contract in which the buyer does not obtain title to the property until the last installment is paid.

When the mortgage lender invoked its "due-on-sale" clause, claiming the property had been sold and the entire amount of the loan therefore due, the buyers went to court. An important consideration in the ultimate Supreme Court decision was that the down payment was sufficiently low that the original buyers still had a substantial interest. The lender's interests were held not to be in enough jeopardy to call the loan.

Hoag commented: "It's the implications of the case that could offer hope to buyers who can't find financing or afford the high interest rates. The principle used by the court could apply in other circumstances as well. Those other circumstances are what we want our members, and through their help, the public, to understand."

Health Plan Manager Is Appointed

John C. Custer has been appointed Health Plan Manager for the Northern California Region of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program and, concurrent with his appointment, has been elected a vice president of Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. He succeeds Frank C. Jones who retired on Nov. 30 after 31 years with the non-profit organization.

Kaiser-Permanente provides prepaid medical care on a voluntary basis to 1.3 million people in Northern California.

Custer, a native of Chicago, earned his Master's degree in Hospital Administration from the University of Minnesota and was Assistant Hospital Administrator at Johns Hopkins prior to joining Kaiser-Permanente in 1967.
